Richmond has launched the STEALTH SASH to be worn in Round 17 against Carlton.

The yellow sash has been proudly worn on the front of the Tigers guernsey since 1914. For generations of Tigers supporters, the sash evokes pride, courage and a sense of belonging.

The next evolution of that famous sash has arrived. The vibrant yellow lines form the sash, with the intense glow illuminating inwards.

The Stealth Sash will be worn alongside our traditional black playing shorts and one-off Stealth Socks.

The guernsey will be the feature piece of Stealth Night at the 'G in Round 17 against Carlton. Be prepared for a Richmond match day like no other.

Strong & Bold – Iconically Richmond.

Headlined by eight goals from Charlie Curnow, Sydney's forward line enjoyed a day out against Richmond on Saturday afternoon, defeating the Tigers by 114 points at the SCG.

The Swans had an immediate response after last week's loss to Geelong, utilising their high-octane running handball game and spread of goalkicking talent against the Tigers to re-establish their standing in the competition, winning 25.20 (170) to 8.8 (56).

The Swans dominated field position with 73 inside-50s to the Tigers' 47, finding targets out of congestion, applying relentless pressure in their forward 50, and punishing mistakes with devastating intercepts.

With Curnow (eight goals), Logan McDonald (two), Joel Amartey (one), and Hayden McLean (four) lurking in the forward arc, Sydney's avenues to goal were potent. Richmond's young defence had their hands full trying to limit the supply from the Swans' midfield.

Jasper Alger kicked three goals for the Tigers in a positive display up forward, while Oliver Hayes-Brown had a moment to shine, kicking his first AFL goal. Jacob Hopper (25 disposals), Tim Taranto (24) and Dion Prestia (20) were Richmond's leading ball-getters.

The Tigers have the bye next week, before hosting the Brisbane Lions in Tasmania on Sunday, June 14.

VFL Match Review vs Sydney Swans – richmondvc.com.au

Despite the game being close all day long, the Tigers found an extra gear when it mattered most to beat the sixth-placed Swans by two goals at Tramway Oval, snapping a five-game losing streak in the process.

Josh Pollocks got the Tigers off to the perfect start, taking a nice pack and kicking truly from the top of the goal square. But young Swans ruck Harrison Podmore-Taylor responded, kicking accurately after being awarded a free kick inside-50, before Mohammed Yassine kept his strong goalkicking form going for Richmond.

For the rest of the term the ball pinged from end to end, but neither team could capitalise on the scoreboard, until Pollocks got his second for the Tigers. While Richmond had the better of the first quarter, Sydney small forward Kaden Harbour kicked a goal on the siren to bring the margin back to only five points.

Both sides turned the ball over in crucial positions to start the second quarter and despite Richmond getting some good looks, inaccuracy in front of goal stopped it from making the most of their dominance.

Finally, it was Sydney forward Joel Hamling who broke the shackles and kicked the only goal of the quarter, as teams went into half-time with scores level.

Defender turned inside-mid Nick Collier kicked Richmond's first of the third term, before Pollocks had a purple patch, kicking three goals in just four minutes to ignite the Tigers.

The Swans responded with goals to Jesse Dattoli and Jake Sutton, but Richmond also kicked a few great goals, going into three-quarter time with a 16-point lead.

Sutton kept the Swans within striking distance to start the last quarter with his second goal of the day, but Kai Stewart answered back with a neat set shot to help maintain the Tigers' buffer.

The Swans didn't go away though, as Mitch Mellis and Billy Cootee kicked nice snapping goals to bring the margin back to just four points, and once again the Tigers were set for another tense finish to the game.

But this time they held strong and kicked two crucial goals through Yassine and Sean Lai, holding on to win by 12 points and snap a string of close losses.

Pollocks was the fire-starter for the Tigers, finishing with five goals, and really got Richmond going after the game was in a holding pattern for much of the first half.

Three of his goals came in a crazy burst during the third term, while AFL-listed defender Kaleb Smith (36 disposals, seven marks) and Harry Scott (27 disposals, 10 tackles and seven clearances) amassed huge games.

Kye Annand (13 disposals, seven intercept possessions) was solid in his first game as a Tiger, as was Hugo Ralphsmith (16 disposals, five marks) who made a successful return from a knee injury.

Richmond will go into the bye with a renewed sense of confidence, before doing battle with Tasmania Devils on Saturday, 13th of June from 12:05pm AEST at UTAS Stadium in Launceston.

Richmond has confirmed Gabby Seymour and Ellie McKenzie will lead its AFLW team as co-captains in the 2026 season.

Seymour has been vice-captain for the past three seasons, showcasing tremendous leadership and being one of the most admired players in the program. She has been a member of the leadership group since Season 7 (2022).

Seymour has played 65 games since her debut in 2020, becoming a core member of the Tigers' backline, gaining widespread recognition and respect for her elite behaviours and determined mindset.

McKenzie has grown immensely since joining Richmond as the number one pick in the 2020 AFLW draft, transforming herself into one of the competition's standout players.

Elevated into the leadership group for the first time last season, McKenzie has thrived as a leader and mentor in the Tigers' AFLW program over the past 12 months, with her impact recognised by her teammates, who have voted her in as co-captain for the upcoming campaign.

"We couldn't be happier to have Gabby and Ellie lead our team this season," coach Jarrad Donders said.

"Gabby leads with authenticity, courage and a genuine commitment to her teammates, setting the standard both on and off the field.

"Ellie leads through her professionalism, competitiveness, relentless work ethic and commitment to helping those around her improve every day."

Monique Conti has been elevated to vice-captain, as she continues to embrace and grow into her role as a leader at the Swinburne Centre.

Conti's masterful on-field performances are well known, as she won her seventh Richmond AFLW best and fairest award last season, after averaging 26.3 disposals, the second-most in her career, and a career-high 7.2 tackles per game.

"Mon leads through her elite standards, humble approach and ability to inspire others through her actions and performance," Donders said.

Rounding out the leadership group is Beth Lynch, Sarah Hosking and Bec Miller.

It is Lynch's second consecutive season as part of the leadership group, while Hosking returns to the group for the first time since 2024, and Miller returns for the first time since 2023.

"Beth leads through genuine care for her teammates, an unwavering reliability and a commitment to upholding team standards every day," Donders explained.

"Sarah leads with her infectious energy, authenticity and a strong ability to connect and elevate those around her.

"Bec leads through her consistently calm demeanour, selflessness, curiosity, and an unwavering commitment to supporting her teammates."
