McIntosh set for MCG farewell to 'unbloodybelievable' Richmond career

Roar Roundup – Week 24

for the
TIGER
ARMY

Dual premiership Tiger Kamdyn McIntosh has announced to teammates that Saturday's clash against Geelong at the MCG will be his final game for the Club.

The 31-year-old has played 212 games across 13 years at Richmond, including every match this year, after being selected with pick No. 31 overall from Pinjarra, Western Australia in the 2012 AFL National Draft.

McIntosh said that all he ever wanted to do was to play an AFL game and get his name on a locker, but the fulfilment he received at the Tigers was so much more.

"I have had some incredible highs and some real lows during my time here. The 2017 Grand Final, it is on par with one of the greatest achievements of my life," McIntosh said.

"To see what it meant to all the fans, my family, my friends and to know that all the hard work that the playing group had put in had gotten us there.

"To get the ultimate success, you have to work incredibly hard, no doubt about it.

"Richmond has changed my life. I have grown up here. This Club has become a family to me. (It) gave me a home away from home.

"I will be forever grateful that (the Club) gave this boy from Pinjarra more than he could ever have dreamt of.

"It is such an honour to have put the jumper on at this Club."

McIntosh had to bide his time before senior opportunities came his way, waiting until Round 1 of his third season in 2015 to make his AFL debut.

A popular figure internally, McIntosh then wasted no time endearing himself to the Tiger Army in his debut match, gathering 23 disposals and kicking a goal to claim that week's AFL Rising Star nomination.

McIntosh went on to play in all 23 games for the Tigers that year and kicked a goal in what was his first finals match, as Richmond lost to North Melbourne in a tight Elimination Final at the MCG.

After an injury-affected 2016, McIntosh was a part of the Richmond team that returned to finals action in 2017.

With less than 50 games of experience at the time, the West Australian held down a vital wing-role in a history-making Richmond team that finished in the top four and convincingly won three finals to snap a 37-year premiership drought.

McIntosh was again a key figure as the Tigers claimed the minor premiership with 18 wins in 2018 and booted an equal career-high three goals in the Qualifying Final win against Hawthorn.

McIntosh bounced back from the individual disappointment of being an emergency on Grand Final day in 2019 to play a stellar season as the Tigers went back-to-back in 2020.

After earning his spot back in the senior team in Round 4 that season, McIntosh played the remaining 18 games and claimed the Kevin Bartlett Medal for a career-high fifth place finish in the best and fairest, such was his influence on the team.

The reliable wingman played 89 games in the successful 2017-2020 period, where Richmond claimed three flags and a first-place finish, with his highly disciplined role crucial to the Club's fortunes.

McIntosh's durability, versatility and team-first skillset has also seen him remain an important player across the past five years where he has been a consistent performer and leader.

The West Australian has played over 20 games in each of the past four seasons, fulfilling a variety of roles, including as a run-with midfielder and at both ends of the ground.

Off the field, McIntosh has been an outstanding connector and driver of culture for the Richmond playing group and broader Club.

McIntosh has annually run a first-year players camp and set an example for off-field development. In 2021, he was awarded the Club's Bunjil Award for best exemplifying Richmond values among players and administration staff.

Richmond Executive General Manager, Football Talent, Blair Hartley, congratulated McIntosh on a terrific 13-year Richmond career, adding that he had to fight for everything he was able to achieve.

"Kamdyn did not play a game in his first two years at the Club, yet he embodied turning up every single day, determined to improve. That persistence saw him forge a 13-year career with us, win two premierships, and become one of our most respected players," Hartley said.

"He is the ultimate team player – the type of person you build a football program around – with an exceptional attitude, strong character, and relentless work ethic.

"Kamdyn's skill set has made us a better side over many seasons, and his premiership medals are a testament to that.

"The way he fought for his spot and his team is something we have always admired. He leaves a lasting legacy on our culture, and he will forever be a Richmond man."

The Tiger Army will have the chance to show appreciation for McIntosh's contribution to the Club in Saturday's clash against Geelong at the MCG.

Injury Report: Round 24, 2025

Four Tigers are made available for Round 24.

High Performance Manager Ben Serpell provides this week's Injury Report as Richmond prepares for its last game of the season against Geelong this Saturday.

This Injury Report is brought to you by nib. With nib, life could be potentially amazing.

Serpell confirmed that Luke Trainor, Samson Ryan, Campbell Gray and Jacob Blight will all be made available for selection this weekend, given they get through main training.

Oliver Hayes-Brown and Liam Fawcett made their return to play over the weekend in the VFL loss to Williamstown, where they both had a successful hit out.

"Great news for both coming back. It was great to see OHB back playing on limited game time, but we will see him back out on almost a full game this weekend," Serpell said.

"Liam has also done a great job, only undergoing surgery six weeks ago and coming back and playing.

"It was great to see them both out there, and I'm looking forward to seeing them play again this weekend."

Unfortunately, Nick Vlastuin will miss the remainder of the season as he suffered a fractured ankle during the clash with North Melbourne. He underwent surgery on Tuesday.

Nick Vlastuin: Ankle, Season

“Unfortunately for Nick, he sustained a pretty significant ankle injury,” Serpell said.

“He has undergone surgery this morning, and it just goes to show how tough he is to be able to walk off the field and be in the operating theatre two days later.

“He will be out for a little bit of time, and unfortunately, it will impact the start of his preseason, but we certainly hope to see him out there early next year.”

Luke Trainor: Hamstring, Available

“Unfortunately for Luke, we pulled him out of the game over the weekend,” Serpell said.

“He reported a bit of hamstring tightness, and we wanted to go conservative there with him. We didn’t want to cause a big issue for an 18-year-old.

“He has already played 20 games this year, so subsequent scans revealed that there is no issue, and he will get through training this week and will be available to play this weekend.”

Samson Ryan: Foot, Available

Campbell Gray: Knee, Available

“I’m really looking forward to seeing Samson out there playing this weekend,” Serpell said.

“It was a long way to return for him, but he has got through all of the work over the last few weeks, being tested quite comprehensively, and we are confident that he can get some game time this weekend.

“Also, for Campbell Gray, sustaining back-to-back knee injuries, he is doing quite well, and again, I’m looking forward to him playing this weekend.

“He probably could have played last week, but having missed so much game time, we just wanted to get a little bit more training into him.”

Jacob Blight: Ankle, Available

“Blighty was carrying a rolled ankle in the game prior, and unfortunately, this weekend, felt as though he wasn’t capable of playing,” Serpell said.

“He got through the weekend no problems and will be available to play this week.”

Mykelti Lefau: Calf, 1 week

“We can say that we will keep him out this week and test him next week,” Serpell said.

“He will hopefully be available for selection if we get past the Wildcard round this week in the VFL.”

Josh Smillie: Quad, 1-2 weeks

“As we reported a long time ago, the quad injury was very minor and he has gone on leaps and bounds these last couple of weeks,” Serpell said.

“We will hopefully make him available for some VFL Finals if we get a little bit deeper into that.”

Tom Sims: Elbow/Foot, Season

“We just put Simsy through some routine end-of-season medicals, and we noticed that there was a navicular stress fracture in his foot,” Serpell said.

“Unfortunately, that is going to require surgery, and we are not too sure when that is going to be because we want to see how his elbow resolves.

“He is going to go through a period of time where he will be on crutches, so we will book his surgery in the next couple of weeks and get some direction from the surgeon after that. Then we will have an idea of where he returns in preseason.”

Sam Lalor and Jonty Faull update

“Jonty is out of the brace now and walking around with a smile,” Serpell said.

“He has started his rehab already, and hopefully he will be running in the next week or two.

“Sammy is doing exceptionally well. We have seen him out there doing a good body of work, getting some good running in.

“We will hopefully pick up the intensity over the next little while, and both of them should be available for a full preseason training routine in November.”

Sheezel equals all-time disposal record as Roos cruise past Tigers

Harry Sheezel has helped the Kangaroos to a comfortable win over the Tigers

HARRY Sheezel has equalled the all-time AFL disposal record in North Melbourne's 48-point victory over Richmond.

The 20-year-old picked up 54 disposals on Sunday afternoon in Hobart, on par with Tom Mitchell's effort for Hawthorn against Collingwood in 2018.

KANGAROOS v TIGERS Full match coverage and stats

Sheezel, who also finished with two goals, surpassed the Kangaroos' club record of 44 – jointly held by Brent Harvey, Phil Kelly and Ryan Bastinac – in the fourth quarter.

He had a chance in the dying stages to have the League record to his own from a centre bounce but couldn't get his hands on the ball.

Sheezel reached 28 disposals and five clearances in the first half and went on with the job in the second.

No player had passed the 50-disposal mark since Brisbane's Lachie Neale in 2019.

The Kangaroos led by eight points at the main break but pulled away with an eight-goal third term in the 20.15 (135) to 13.9 (87) result.

North's fifth win of the year came at a cost, with Cam Zurhaar limping off with an ankle problem early in the second quarter after his leg was twisted in a tackle.

The Tigers had their own problems, with key defender Nick Vlastuin also hobbling off with an ankle injury after falling awkwardly.

North forward Paul Curtis joined in on the fun with a career-high five goals, featuring several snaps from tight angles, and a one-handed mark.

Remarkably, 11 of the top 12 disposal getters for the game wore blue and white.

Before a crowd of 11,176, the match was North Melbourne's final home game in Hobart at the end of a 13-year deal to play in Tasmania.

Tom Lynch started strongly for Richmond, kicking his team's first two majors and getting the better of Kangaroos defender Toby Pink for both.

He finished with three goals but could have had more if not for some wayward set shots.

North had more inside 50s (15-8) in the opening term but was wasteful, missing five consecutive shots at goal.

The Tigers took a seven-point lead into the second quarter before back-to-back goals from Curtis put the Kangaroos ahead.

Gun pair hurt in first half

Both teams were dealt an injury blow in the opening half as Roos forward Cam Zurhaar and Tigers star Nick Vlastuin were substituted with ankle injuries. Zurhaar got caught under a tackle from Tylar Young, while Vlastuin landed awkwardly as both sides were dealt blows in the first half.

Tigers make late, late change

Richmond made a very late change after Luke Trainor was withdrawn from the game in the warm-up. The Tigers initially named Kamdyn McIntosh as their substitute, but Trainor was withdrawn due to hamstring tightness and replaced by Steely Green, who was brought in as the sub.

VFL Match Review – Williamstown Seagulls – Richmondfc.com.au

Richmond VFL defeated by plucky Seagulls

While inaccuracy in front of goal from Williamstown kept the Tigers in the game, Richmond's VFL side eventually succumbed to the Seagulls on Sunday.

Richmond VFL were unable to produce the type of footy it has for most of the season, falling to a hungry Williamstown outfit by 21 points at DSV Stadium on Sunday afternoon.

The Wildcard Round now awaits the Tigers, who face GWS next weekend.

The Tigers got off to a wonderful start with combative midfielder Lachlan Wilson pushing forward and kicking a goal in the first minute of the game.

Liam George and Nicholas Girolami followed that moments later with classy set shots giving Richmond all of the early running.

But the Seagulls settled with crucial goals to Damon Hollow and Nick Ebinger, helping Williamstown claw its way into the contest, however the Tigers had done enough to take a 10-point lead into quarter-time.

The second quarter is where the Seagulls really began to turn the screws, getting on top in clearances and dominating time in forward half.

They managed to capitalise on their opportunities early in the term with three quick goals – two coming from key forward Brodie McLaughlin, as they took the lead for the first time in the game.

A 23-point turnaround gave Williamstown a 13-point lead at the main break, and it would've been even more if it had kicked more accurately late in the quarter.

Williamstown continued to own the ball in the air and on the ground after half-time, but poor goalkicking kept the door ajar for Richmond.

The Seagulls could manage just one goal from seven scoring shots for the term, to lead by 11 points with a quarter to play.

The Tigers came out of the final break with more dare and flow in their ball movement, able to gain repeat inside-50s and put plenty of heat on the Seagulls' backline.

But like they had done for most of the day, Williamstown took countless intercept marks and held strong, before kicking away late in the game to win by 21 points – booking a Wildcard Round spot in the process.

McLaughlin once again showed why he is one of the best forwards in the VFL, kicking four goals, while Jake Greiser patrolled the backline brilliantly (31 disposals and 11 marks).

Kaleb Smith was a big positive on a tough day for the Tigers, finishing the game with 30 disposals and five marks.

Harry Scott also had a great game (24 disposals and six tackles), as he continues to emerge as a star of the competition.

The Tigers will front up again next weekend in the Wildcard Round against GWS, with the date and venue still to be determined.

Richmond 4.0 5.0 7.2 8.4 (52)
Williamstown 2.2 6.7 7.13 9.19 (73)

AFLW Match Review – Sydney Swans – richmondfc.com.au

Swans too good for Tigers in season opener

Richmond's 2025 AFLW season has started with a loss to Sydney.

A strong performance from Sydney duo Chloe Molloy and Zippy Fish proved too much for Richmond to overcome on Friday night, as the Tigers fell in their AFLW season opener.

The Swans were in control for much of the contest without quite putting the Tigers away until breaking the game open with four third-term goals on the way to an 8.10 (58) to 5.8 (38) win on Friday night.

Molloy made an immediate impact in her first game back from an ACL injury that ruled her out of most of last season, with Sydney's opening goal in the first term. She finished with four majors.

But the Swans' co-captain was almost outshone by Fish's superb first game as the 19-year-old gathered 25 disposals to fall one short of the record for the most on debut.

The Tigers were able to stay with the Swans through the opening half as they remained a threat on the counterattack, but were unable to stick with the hosts as the game opened up.

Caitlin Greiser booted the first goal of the game with a long bomb from 50m as the Sydney defenders switched off as the ball floated through at head height.

But there was no stopping Greiser's second major as the key forward flushed her kick from beyond the arc to keep the Tigers in the contest after the Swans were on top heading into the main change.

Monique Conti was outstanding with a game-high 32 disposals, while Ellie McKenzie (20 disposals, one goal) also battled hard in the midfield.

Katelyn Cox got through her first game in 649 days unscathed after recovering from an ACL injury and had some important interventions as Richmond fought out the final term.

In a highlight for the Tigers, key defender Rebecca Miller was thrown forward and booted her first AFLW goal in her 52nd game, then kicked a second to give her side a hint of life.

But by then the Swans had already opened up what proved to be a match-winning lead, even before Molloy put the icing on the cake with her fourth goal in the dying stages.

Richmond will search for a first win of the season when it hosts Western Bulldogs at IKON Park next Sunday from 12.35pm.

Former No.1 picks share the spoils

Montana Ham and Ellie McKenzie share a slice of history as former No.1 draft picks, but there was no love lost with the midfield duo butting heads from the opening bounce. After keeping a close eye on each other and enjoying a bit of niggles through the early exchanges, the pair eventually went their separate ways, with Ham doing most of her damage in the forward half and McKenzie continuing in her on-ball role. The Swans' prized draftee might have taken the honours if not for misfiring near goal as she finished with 0.3, while McKenzie was important for the Tigers at the coalface with a game-high eight clearances.
